

Perfluorinated compounds in perch in Finnish waters. The only compound whose use is limited by international regulation is PFOS. Perfluorinated compounds are commonly used in textiles to render them water and dirt repellent, in fire fighting foams and in surface treatment of metals.